

Wilderness Explorers Media Services and Production CV

Nobody handles more scouts, film crews, reporters, production teams, and photojournalists in Guyana than Wilderness Explorers. Operating since 1994, we are Guyana's only Destination Management Company and leading Location Producers.

In fact, we offer unrivalled experience supporting, clearing and managing global media teams working across all three Guianas. Our portfolio of services ranges from the purely practical – location planning, logistics, materiel management, transport, supplies, and staffing – to the more complex challenges of securing governmental permits and approvals, researching content and creating storylines, arranging high-level interviews, chartering aircraft and vehicles, and discretely managing delicate relationships with indigenous communities who may be unfamiliar with western media practices and norms.

We are preferred fixers for the BBC as well as an accredited Disney vendor and in early 2021 supported Dan O'Neill's trip to Guyana to film Last Eden for BBC Earth as well as two major productions for National Geographic which will be aired in 2022.

Over the years we have worked with several TV production companies such as Icon Films, Big Earth Productions for CNN, Infocus-Asia, Zero Point Zero, Uplands TV, Ricochet and ITV as well as various independent companies in Europe, North America and Asia.

We have also supported many photojournalists and writers commissioned to write for prestigious publications such as The Sunday Times, The Guardian, Wanderlust, National Geographic Magazine as well as key influencers and bloggers.
